23          This action is brought by Plaintiff, the Federal Trade Commission ("FTC" or "Commission"), which is an independent agency of the United States Government created by statute. 15 U.S.C. §§ 41-58. The Commission brings this

1 Therapeutics, Inc., ("Therapeutics"), and Ron Tepper ("Tepper") - all of which 2 are hereinafter collectively referred to as the "Braswell Common Enterprise."

3         The Commission brings this action under Section 13(b) of the Federal 4 Trade Commission Act ("FTC Act"), to secure a permanent injunction, restitution, 5 disgorgement, and other equitable relief against the Braswell Common Enterprise 6 for engaging in deceptive acts or practices and false advertising in connection with 7 the advertising, marketing, and sale of products purporting to treat, prevent, and/or 8 cure such conditions as respiratory illnesses, diabetes, dementia, obesity, and 9 impotence, in violation of Sections 5(a) and 12 of the FTC Act, 15 U.S.C. §§ 45(a) 10 and 52. See Complaint for Permanent Injunction and Other Equitable Relief 11 (hereinafter "Complaint") at 1-2.

12         The Commission alleges the following facts in its Complaint:

13         For over twenty-five years, Braswell has marketed dietary 14 supplements and other health-related products through a frequently changing 15 group of interrelated companies. See Complaint at ¶ 5. Defendants Braswell, 16 JOL, G.B. Data Systems, GVI, Therapeutics, and Tepper operate a common 17 business enterprise. Id. at ¶ 11. They share and have shared officers, employees, 18 and office locations; have commingled funds; and are commonly controlled and 19 have participated in a common scheme to engage in deceptive acts and practices, 20 making them jointly and severally liable for said acts and practices. Id.

21         The Braswell Common Enterprise is one of the largest direct 22 marketers of dietary supplements and other health-related products in the United 23 States, with total sales since 1998 exceeding $798 million. See Complaint at ¶ 13.
24 The Braswell Common Enterprise uses direct mail solicitations to generate 25 business. See Complaint at ¶ 14. It purchases or rents consumer names and

1 addresses from brokers, targeting persons aged 40 to 60, and mails advertising to 2 these consumers. Id.

3 New and repeat purchasers receive multi-page advertisements that 4 describe various medical conditions and detail various remedies - often 5 purportedly based on "scientific breakthroughs" or "long lost but newly 6 discovered" formulas. Id. Defendants claim that their products will cure, treat, or 7 alleviate these conditions in glossy, multi-page brochures that typically feature 8 "expert" medical or scientific endorsers, consumer testimonials, and frequent 9 references to "scientific" evidence that purport to substantiate the efficacy and 10 benefits of the products. Id.

11 Purchasers also receive a "subscription" to the Journal of Longevity, 12 which appears to be a legitimate medical journal with scientific articles written by 13 medical professionals but which is, in fact, promotional advertising prepared and 14 disseminated by Defendants. Id. Consumers can purchase the advertised products 15 via mail order, telephone, or electronically on Defendants' website, www.gvi.com.
16 Id.

17 Defendants' advertisements contain a return address in Toronto, 18 Canada, to which consumers send their orders via mail. See Complaint at ¶ 15. In 19 fact, Defendants have no employees in Canada and all such mail orders are sent 20 from the Canadian mail drop address to Defendants' offices in the United States 21 for fulfillment. Id.

22 Among the products that Defendants have advertised, labeled, offered 23 for sale, sold and distributed in recent years are: Lung Support Formula, Gero Vita 24 G.H.3, and Testerex, all marketed since at least 1998; ChitoPlex, marketed since at 25 least 1999; AntiBetic Pancreas Tonic, marketed since at least 2000; and 26 Theraceuticals GH3 Romanian Youth Formula, marketed since at least 2001. See 27

SCANNED

1 Complaint at ¶ 16. Like their other products, Defendants advertise and offer these 2 products for sale through direct mail advertising, including the Journal of 3 Longevity, and through their website, www.giv.com. Id.

4 In its Complaint, the Commission details the specific claims made for 5 each product, indicating the symptoms that each product cures or alleviates, and 6 includes testimonials from consumers indicating their endorsement for the 7 products. See generally, Complaint at 6-31.

8 Defendants have represented, either expressly or by implication, that 9 Lung Support cures or significantly alleviates certain lung diseases and respiratory 10 problems, reverses existing lung damage in persons with emphysema, prevents 11 breathing problems for otherwise healthy persons, and is clinically proven to 12 eliminate or cure allergies, asthma, colds, and other illnesses and conditions. See 13 Complaint at ¶ 29. The representations made with regards to Lung Support are 14 false or were not substantiated at the time the representations were made, 15 constituting a deceptive practice, and the making of false advertisements in 16 violation of Sections 5(a) and 12 of the FTC Act, 15 U.S.C. §§ 45(a) and 52. See 17 Complaint at ¶ 30.

18 Defendants have represented, either expressly or by implication, that 19 AntiBetic can cure Type I and Type II diabetes, is an effective or superior 20 alternative to insulin or other medications for the treatment of diabetes, and is 21 clinically proven to regenerate or repair the pancreatic beta cells that produce 22 insulin and to lower blood sugar levels in persons with diabetes. See Complaint at 23 ¶ 31. The representations made with regards to AntiBetic are false or were not 24 substantiated at the time the representations were made, constituting a deceptive 25 practice, and the making of false advertisements in violation of Sections 5(a) and 26 12 of the FTC Act, 15 U.S.C. §§ 45(a) and 52. See Complaint at ¶ 32.

RightFAX

11/14/2003 8:22 PAGE 8/24 RightFAX

1 Defendants have represented, either expressly or by implication, that G.H.3 is clinically proven to reverse and prevent age-related memory loss, 2 dementia, and Alzheimer's disease, and can increase life spans by 29%. See 3 Complaint at ¶ 33. The representations made with regards to G.H.3 are false or 4 were not substantiated at the time the representations were made, constituting a 5 deceptive practice, and the making of false advertisements in violation of Sections 6 5(a) and 12 of the FTC Act, 15 U.S.C. §§ 45(a) and 52. See Complaint at ¶ 34.

7 Defendants have represented, either expressly or by implication, that ChitoPlex enables consumers to lose substantial weight without the need for a 8 restricted calorie diet or exercise, reverse obesity, and is proven to cause weight 9 loss based on a 1994 double-blind, placebo-controlled chitosan study conducted in 10 Finland that resulted in chitosan subjects losing an average of 15 pounds in four 11 weeks while consuming their normal diet. See Complaint at ¶ 35. The 12 representations made with regards to ChitoPlex are false or were not substantiated 13 at the time the representations were made, constituting a deceptive practice, and 14 the making of false advertisements in violation of Sections 5(a) and 12 of the FTC
 15 Act, 15 U.S.C. §§ 45(a) and 52. See Complaint at ¶ 36.

16 ~~The Defendants have represented, either expressly or by implication,~~
 17 that Testerex is effective in treating impotence or erectile dysfunction in 62-95% 18 of users, and is safe with no harmful side effects. See Complaint at ¶ 37. The 19 representations made with regards to Testerex are false or were not substantiated 20 at the time the representations were made, constituting a deceptive practice, and 21 the making of false advertisements in violation of Sections 5(a) and 12 of the FTC
 22 Act, 15 U.S.C. §§ 45(a) and 52. See Complaint at ¶ 34.

23 Through the use of the statements contained in advertisements, 24 Defendants have represented, directly or by implication that all Gero Vita products

1 have been scientifically tested and proven to be effective, when in truth and in 2 fact, they have not been. See Complaint at ¶¶ 39-40. Therefore, the making of 3 these representations constitutes a deceptive practice, and the making of false
 4 advertisements in violation of Sections 5(a) and 12 of the FTC Act, 15 U.S.C. §§ 5 45(a) and 52. Id. at ¶ 40.

6 Defendants have represented, expressly or by implications, that the 7 New Life Nutrition magazine is an independent publication and not paid 8 commercial advertising, when in truth and in fact, the New Life Nutrition 9 magazine is not an independent publication, and is paid commercial advertising 10 written and disseminated by Defendants for the purpose of selling their products.
 11 See Complaint at ¶¶ 41-42. Therefore, the making of these representations 12 constitutes a deceptive practice, and the making of false advertisements in 13 violation of Sections 5(a) and 12 of the FTC Act, 15 U.S.C. §§ 45(a) and 52. Id. at 14 ¶ 42.

15 Defendants have represented, expressly or by implication, that the 16 Council on Natural Nutrition is an independent organization that has expertise in 17 the examination and evaluation of nutritional health products, and that the Council 18 conferred its exclusive Golden Nutrition Award on three of Defendants' products, 19 including G.H.3, and ChitoPlex, based upon its senior scientific editors' 20 independent, objective, and valid examination and evaluation of thousands of 21 nutritional health products, using procedures generally accepted by experts in the 22 relevant fields to yield accurate and reliable results. See Complaint at ¶ 43.

23 In truth and in fact, the Council on Natural Nutrition is not an 24 independent organization that has expertise in the examination or evaluation of 25 nutritional health products, and it did not confer its exclusive Golden Nutrition 26 Award on the Defendants' products, including G.H.3, and ChitoPlex, based upon

RightFAX

1 its senior scientific editors' independent, objective, and valid examination and 2 evaluation of thousands of nutritional health products, using procedures generally 3 accepted by experts in the relevant fields to yield accurate and reliable results. See 4 Complaint at ¶ 44. The Council on Natural Nutrition was established by 5 Defendants and has been used by Defendants for the purpose of selling their 6 products. Id.

7 In addition, the Council on Natural Nutrition does not have a staff of 8 "senior scientific editors" with expertise in evaluating health-related products, and 9 at least one of the "senior scientific editors" is or was an employee of Defendants 10 with no scientific training in the examination or evaluation of nutritional health 11 products. Id. The making of these representations constitutes a deceptive 12 practice, and the making of false advertisements in violation of Sections 5(a) and 13 12 of the FTC Act, 15 U.S.C. §§ 45(a) and 52. Id.

14 Defendants have represented, expressly or by implication, that Dr.
 15 Ronald Lawrence, Director of the Council on Natural Nutrition, has endorsed 16 Defendants' products, including G.H 3 and ChitoPlex, based upon his 17 independent, objective evaluation of the products. See Complaint at ¶ 45.
 18 Defendants have failed to disclose that Dr. Lawrence and the Council on Natural 19 Nutrition have material connections to Defendants. Id. Among other things, Dr.
 20 Lawrence is a paid endorser of Defendants' products and is or was a member of 21 Defendant G.B. Data Systems' Board of Directors. Id.

22 The Council on Natural Nutrition is or was an organization 23 established by Defendants and is or was used for the purpose of advertising and 24 promoting their products. Id. Therefore, the failure to disclose these facts, in light 25 of the representations made, constitutes a deceptive practice, and the making of

- 1 false advertisements in violation of Sections 5(a) and 12 of the FTC Act, 15

3 Consumers throughout the United States have suffered and continue 4 to suffer substantial monetary loss as a result of the Defendants' unlawful acts or 5 practices. See Complaint at ¶ 46. In addition, Defendants have been unjustly 6 enriched as a result of their unlawful practices. Id. Absent relief, Defendants are 7 likely to continue to injure consumers, reap unjust enrichment, and harm the 8 public interest. Id.

1 On September 15, 2003, this Court entered an Order Denying 2 Defendant Ron Tepper's Motion to Dismiss Complaint Pursuant to Federal Rule
 3 of Civil Procedure 12(b)(1), 12(b)(6), 9(b) & 9(f).

4 On September 25, 2003, Defendant Tepper filed an Answer to 5 Complaint and Affirmative Defenses. In the Answer, Defendant Tepper made a 6 Demand for Trial by Jury.

7 On September 26, 2003, Defendant A. Glenn Braswell, JOL
 8 Management Co., G.B. Data Systems, Inc., and Theraceuticals, Inc. filed an 9 Answer and Affirmative Defenses Memorandum.

10 On October 3, 2003, this Court filed an Order Setting Scheduling
 11 Conference for December 1, 2003.

12 On October 17, 2003, Plaintiff filed a Motion to Strike Various 13 Affirmative Defenses of Defendants A. Glenn Braswell, JOL Management Co., 14 G.B. Data Systems, Inc., Theraceuticals, Inc., and Ron Tepper ("Motion to 15 Strike"), which is before this Court.<sup>4</sup>

17 II. Discussion

18 A. Standard

19 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(f) provides that "[u]pon motion 20 made by a party . . . the court may order stricken from any pleading any 21 insufficient defense, or any redundant . . . matter." (FED.R.CIV.P. 12(f)). A Rule

23 * The FTC's Motion to Strike requests that this Court strike eight 24 affirmative defenses plus two additional statements raised in the Answer filed by 25 A. Glenn Braswell, JOL Management Co., G.B. Data Systems, Inc., Gero Vita 26 International, Inc. and Theraceuticals, Inc. In addition, in the same Motion to 27 Strike, the FTC requests that this Court strike nine affirmative defenses plus two additional statements raised in Defendant Ron Tepper's Answer. (See Motion to Strike at 1.)

1 12(f) motion to strike is "proper when a defense is insufficient as a matter of law." <sup>CHANGED</sup>
 2 (See FTC v. Medicor, LLC, 2001 WL 765628, *1 (C.D.Cal.) (citing Schwarzer, 3 Tashima & Wagstaffe, California Practice Guide: Federal Civil Procedure Before 4 Trial ¶ 9:378 (2001)). It is the moving party's burden to establish the following: 5 (1) the absence of questions of fact; (2) that any questions of law are beyond 6 dispute; (3) that there is no set of circumstances under which the challenged 7 defense could succeed; and (4) presentation of the defense would prejudice the 8 moving party. (See Schwarzer, at ¶¶ 9:381, 9:375, 9:407.) Thus, a motion to 9 strike will not be granted if the insufficiency of the defense is not clearly apparent, 10 or if it raises factual issues that should be determined by a hearing on the merits.

 17        B. Analysis

18           The FTC seeks to strike eight of ten affirmative defenses asserted by 19 Defendants. (See Answer and Affirmative Defenses of Defendant A. Glenn 20 Braswell, JOL Management Co., G.B. Data Systems, Inc., and Theraceuticals, Inc.
 21 ("Answer") at 13-14). This Court addresses each of these below. At the outset, 22 though, this Court notes the high threshold involved in striking an affirmative 23 defense. (See Standard, supra.) To a large extent, in seeking to strike certain 24 affirmative defenses, the FTC is asking this Court to determine factual issues and 25 the merits of the defenses and/or claims asserted. However, at this juncture of the 26 litigation, this Court cannot do so. Nonetheless, it should also be noted that while

1 this Court may not strike the defense at this time, Defendants will still be required 2 to ultimately prove the merits of the defense.

4       1. This Court Denies the FTC's Motion to Strike Defendants' First 5       Affirmative Defense of Good Faith to the Extent it is Asserted
 6       Against the Granting of a Permanent Injunction

7       The FTC argues that Defendants' affirmative defense of good faith 8 must be stricken because "the law is well-established that good faith is not a 9 defense to the FTC Act." (See Motion to Strike at 4.) This Court agrees that good 10 faith may not be offered as an affirmative defense to a violation of section 5 of the 11 FTC Act. However, to the extent that the affirmative defense is asserted against 12 the granting of a permanent injunction, it is permitted.

13       A careful reading of the case law makes it clear that while good faith 14 is not relevant to whether the actual violation of section 5 of the FTC Act 15 occurred, it is relevant to the issue of whether a permanent injunction is 16 appropriate. (See Medicor, 2001 WL 765628 at **2-3; Hang-Ups, 1995 WL 17 914179 at *3). This is because the granting of a permanent injunction requires 18 that "there exist some cognizable danger of recurrent violation." (See Hang-Ups, 19 1995 WL 914179 at *3 (citing United States v. W.T. Grant Co., 345 U.S. 629, 633 20 (1953)). The determination of whether the alleged violations are likely to recur, 21 requires the court to look at: (1) the deliberateness . . . of the present violation, and 22 (2) the violator's past record." (See id. (citing Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. FTC, 23 Id. 676 F.2d 385, 392 (9th Cir. 1982))). As the court in Hang-Ups noted, "good 24 faith on the part of the defendant[s] could be determinative of the first factor and 25 therefore preclude injunctive relief." (See Hang-Ups, 1995 WL 914179 at *3.)

1 Since the FTC is seeking a permanent injunction against Defendants 2 (see Complaint at 1-2), the issue of whether the wrongful acts were "deliberate" is 3 indeed relevant to the issue of whether a permanent injunction is appropriate. (See 4 Complaint at 1-2.) This Court declines the FTC's invitation to ignore the Medicor 5 and Hang-Ups decision and denies the FTC's Motion to Strike Corporate 6 Defendants' good faith affirmative defense to the extent it is asserted against the 7 granting of a permanent injunction.<sup>5</sup>

9 2. This Court Denies the FTC's Motion to Strike Defendants' Second 10 Affirmative Defense of Laches.

11 The FTC moves to strike Defendants' laches affirmative defense 12 because "it is well established that laches is not a defense to a civil suit to enforce 13 a public right or to protect a public interest." (See Motion to Strike at 4.) In 14 response, Defendants argue that the law is, in fact, not well-settled, and that the 15 laches defense requires a factual determination making it inappropriate to strike it 16 at this juncture. (See Opposition at 8-9.)

17

18

---

19       <sup>5</sup> The FTC cites numerous cases that purportedly support the proposition 20 that good faith is not a defense to violations of section 5 of the FTC Act.
 21 However, the FTC's argument is not wholly persuasive for several reasons. First, 22 while the FTC gives great weight to decisions from several other jurisdictions, it 23 gives short shrift to two cases within this jurisdiction that expressly upheld the 24 assertion of a good faith defense against an FTC complaint seeking permanent 25 injunctive relief and individual liability (i.e. the Medicor and Hang-Ups 26 decisions). Second, although the FTC suggests otherwise, the ultimate outcome of 27 the Medicore case is irrelevant to whether the affirmative defense is sufficient to survive a motion to strike. Third, in support of its position, the FTC cites Hang-Ups; however, as both parties noted in their Oppositions, it is clear that the quotation used was taken completely out of context.

11/14/2003 8:22 PAGE 15/24 RightFAX

1       Traditionally, the doctrine of laches has not been available against the 2 government in a suit by it to enforce a public right or protect a public interest.
3 (See Hang-Ups 1995 WL 914179 at *4 (quoting United States v. Ruby Co., 588 4 F.2d 697, 705 n.10 (9th Cir. 1978)). However, laches "may be a defense against 5 the government if 'affirmative misconduct' by the government is shown." (Id.
6 (quoting Ruby, 588 F.2d at 705 n.10)). The applicability of laches against the 7 government is determined on a case-by-case basis. (See Hang-Ups, 1995 WL 8 914179 at *4 (noting that "[t]he facts of the case should decide whether there has 9 been affirmative misconduct by the government such that laches might apply"); 10 Occidental Life Ins. Co. of California v. E.E.O.C., 432 U.S. 355, 373 (1977) 11 (determined on a case-by-case basis)).

12      Based on the above, the granting of the FTC's Motion to Strike this 13 affirmative defense under Fed.R.Civ.P. 12(f) is improper because (1) it is not 14 beyond dispute whether the laches defense is applicable; (2) there would be a set 15 of circumstances under which the laches defense could succeed; and (3) even if 16 the laches defense does apply, a potential question of fact regarding the presence 17 of "affirmative misconduct" by the government exists. In addition, while the FTC 18 argues that Defendants have conceded that they do not intend to allege bad faith or 19 improper purpose and that Defendants' assertion that affirmative misconduct may 20 be present is "nothing but bare bones conclusory allegations," Defendants 21 vigorously reject this assertion, and note that the FTC's suggestion that 22 Defendants have conceded the absence of affirmative misconduct in prior 23 pleadings is "absurd." (See Opposition at 9.) This further supports this Court's 24 decision not to strike Defendants' affirmative defense of laches at this time.

1       3. This Court Grants the FTC's Motion to Strike Defendants' Third 2                  Affirmative Defense of Failure to Exhaust Administrative 3                  Remedies

4                  The FTC argues that Defendants' third affirmative defense, failure to 5 exhaust administrative remedies, must be stricken for several reasons. First, "[t]he 6 plain reading of 13(b) of the FTC Act . . . makes clear that the Commission is not 7 required to pursue its case administratively prior to invoking this Court's 8 jurisdiction." (See Motion to Strike at 5.) Second, the FTC argues that the FTC's 9 authority to bring Section 13 (b) actions directly in federal court has been 10 examined and upheld by numerous courts. (Id.)

11                 The right to bring Section 13(b) actions directly in federal court has 12 indeed been examined and upheld by numerous district and appellate courts. (See 13 Motion to Strike at 5 (citing United States v. JS & S Group, Inc., 716 F.2d 451 14 (7th Cir. 1983) (holding that the FTC may seek a permanent injunction in federal 15 court . . . without having first instituted administrative proceedings))). This 16 authority was restated in the Ninth Circuit in FTC v. Pantron I Corp., where the 17 court held that Section 13(b) "gives the federal courts broad authority to fashion 18 appropriate remedies for violations of the [FTC] Act." (See Pantron, 33 F.3d 19 1312, 1314-15 (9th Cir. 1994)). The language of the FTC Act states: "Whenever 20 the Commission has reason to believe . . . that any person, partnership, or 21 corporation is violating or is about to violate, any provision of law enforced by the 22 Federal Trade Commission . . . the Commission may . . . bring suit in a district 23 court of the United States to enjoin any such act or practice. (See 15 U.S.C. § 24 53(b)(1) (2003)).

25                 Contrary to Defendants' argument, there is no requirement in either 26 Section 13(b) or Section 53(b) that administrative remedies be exhausted before

RightFAX

11/14/2003 8:22 PAGE 17/24 RightFAX

1 the FTC is authorized to bring suit in a district court of the United States. Further,
2 the lack of any case law to the contrary leads this Court to grant the FTC's Motion 3 to Strike Defendants' affirmative defense of failure to exhaust administrative 4 remedies.

6 4. This Court Grants the FTC's Motion to Strike Defendants'
7 Fourth Affirmative Defense of Statute of Limitations

8 Defendants argue that the FTC's claims under Section 13(b) are 9 subject to the three-year statute of limitations present in Section 19 of the FTC 10 Act. (See Opposition at 10-11.) The gist of Defendants' argument is that since 11 ancillary relief in the form of consumer relief is available under Section 13(b), 12 claims under Section 13(b) must at least comply with the consumer relief 13 provisions of Section 19, including the three-year statute of limitations. (See 14 Opposition at 13-14.) In contrast, the FTC contends that, in addition to case law, 15 the clear language of Section 19 precludes the application of the three-year statute 16 of limitations to actions brought under Section 13(b). (See Motion to Strike at 7.)

17 Under Section 13(b), ancillary equitable relief, including rescission of 18 contracts and monetary relief in the form of consumer redress and disgorgement 19 for violations of the FTC Act is authorized. (See e.g., Pantron I Corp., 33 F.3d 20 1088 (9th Cir. 1994); FTC v. Silueta Dist., Inc., 1995 WL 215313, *7 (N.D. Cal.
21 1995) (noting that the Ninth Circuit's interpretation of Section 13(b) allows 22 federal courts to broadly apply their equitable powers)). Although Section 13(b) 23 does not explicitly state or refer to any statute of limitations (see Motion to Strike 24 at 7), several courts have held that "the three-year statute of limitations contained 25 in Section 19 of the FTC Act is not applicable to Section 13(b) cases." (See FTC
26 Minuteman Press, 53 F.Supp.2d 248 (E.D. N.Y. 1998); United States v. Building

Inspector of America, Inc., 894 F. Supp. 507, 514 (D. 6                 Based on the absence of language in Section 13(b) indicating the 7 presence of a statute of limitations and the clear language in Section 19, this Court
8 finds that the FTC's Motion to Strike Defendants' statute of limitations affirmative 9 defense should be granted.

5. This Court Denies the FTC's Motion to Strike Defendants' Fifth Affirmative Defense of Offset/Setoff

In seeking to strike the affirmative defense of offset/setoff, the FTC argues that the appropriate measure of equitable monetary relief pursuant to Section 13(b) of the FTC Act is the full amount lost by consumers without regard to Defendants' profits and with a deduction only for refunds already made. (See Motion to Strike at 8 (citing FTC v. Febre, 128 F.3d 530, 536 (7th Cir. 1997)). Defendants respond that "the FTC's objections to offset of monetary relief are premature and unsupported." (See Opposition at 15.) Moreover, Defendants argue that the determination of whether benefits received by consumers can be considered in determining relief is a factual matter. (Id. at 18.)

Based on the numerous cases cited by both parties in support of their respective positions, this Court finds that a determination as to the applicability of

26 case in federal court, pursuant to 13(b) rather than through . . . Section 19(a)(2) . . .
27 . . . a decision . . . within its sound discretion." (See Reply at 5 n.4.)

RightFAX

1 this affirmative defense at this time is premature. In other words, the law that an 2 offset/setoff is not allowed is not "beyond dispute." In fact, while the FTC argues 3 that no deductions are proper, the FTC's own case law demonstrates that the types<sup>SCANNED</sup>
 4 of "offset/setoff" sought by Defendants are frequently deducted from overall 5 judgments. For example, in Medicor,<sup>7</sup> the court affirmed the $16.6 million 6 disgorgement judgment only after noting that the FTC "presented the declaration 7 of an accountant indicating that refunds, charge backs, and returns have been 8 deducted. (See Medicor, 217 F.Supp.2d at 1057-58 (emphasis added)). In FTC v.
 9 Amy Travel Serv. Inc.,<sup>8</sup> the court actually affirmed a reduction for consumers who 10 received a benefit. (See Amy, 875 F.2d 564, 572 (7th Cir. 1989) (noting that "the 11 magistrate correctly acknowledged the existence of satisfied customers in 12 computing the amount of defendants' liability—customers who actually took 13 vacation trips were excluded when the magistrate computed the amount of 14 restitution awarded")). Finally, in FTC v. SlimAmerica, Inc., the court affirmed 15 an $8.4 million redress judgment and stated, "[t]he appropriate measure for redress 16 is [the] aggregate amount paid by consumers, less refunds made by defendants."
 17 (See SlimAmerica, 77 F.Supp.2d 1263, 1275-76 (S.D. Fla. 1999)).

18 Based on the above, it is clear that at least some types of deductions 19 Defendants request have been permitted. This is not to say that this Court will 20 allow them here. Rather, this Court must assess this issue in light of the particular 21 facts of this case as compared to the facts of these other cases. Thus, this Court 22 denies the FTC's Motion to Dismiss Defendants' offset/setoff affirmative defense.

1           6. This Court Grants the FTC's Motion to Strike Defendants' Sixth<sup>25</sup> 2           Affirmative Defense of First Amendment Violation

3           Defendants incorporate the arguments explained in Defendant
4           Tepper's Motion to Dismiss the Complaint and further assert that the FTC's 5           theory "that a statement is false or misleading simply because the speaker lacked 6           substantiation at the time the statement was made is unconstitutional." (See 7           Opposition at 20.) In response, the FTC argues that this affirmative defense must 8           be stricken. This Court agrees with the FTC.

9           First, this Court has already ruled that "the mere initiation of this 10          lawsuit does not restrict in any way the [Defendant's] ability to engage in truthful, 11          non-misleading speech . . . At this time, this Court finds that the Commission's 12          allegations, if proven, will establish that Defendants have engaged in commercial 13          speech that is either false or misleading, neither of which would result in the 14          infringement of [Defendants'] First Amendment right of freedom of speech." (See 15          Motion to Strike at 10 (citing Order Denying Defendant Ron Tepper's Motion to 16          Dismiss Complaint Pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 12(b)(1), 17          12(b)(6), 9(b) & 9(f) at 19 (Sept. 15, 2003))). As such, This Court finds that 18          Defendants' affirmative defense must be stricken because the issue has already 19          been decided by this Court. (See FED.R.CIV.P. 12(f) (noting that "upon motion 20          made by a party . . . the court may order stricken from any pleading any 21          insufficient defense, or any redundant . . . matter")).

22           Further, as the FTC argues, the FTC's advertising substantiation 23          requirements have been upheld by numerous circuits, including the Ninth Circuit 24          in Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. FTC, where the court rejected Sears' argument that its 25          First Amendment rights had been violated. (See Sears, 676 F.2d 385, 399-400 26          (9th Cir. 1982)). The court stated: "The Commission may require prior reasonable

1 substantiation of product performance claims after finding violations of the [FTC] SCANNED
2 Act, without offending the First Amendment." (Id.) Thus, a violation of the First 3 Amendment does not result from the mere initiation of a lawsuit.

5 7. This Court Denies the FTC's Motion to Strike Defendants'
6 Seventh Affirmative Defense of Waiver

7 Defendants assert that assessing the scope of consumer harm is an 8 issue that cannot be addressed until after "the evidence is in." (See Opposition at 9 22.) In other words, Defendants argue that there is a significant issue of fact that 10 is unresolved at this stage of the pleadings, making it inappropriate to strike 11 Defendants' affirmative defense. In response, the FTC argues that if the FTC is 12 able to prove that "consumers' purchasing decisions were founded, in part, on 13 false, deceptive or unsubstantiated claims, then such claims are clearly actionable 14 under longstanding and well-established precedent, irrespective of whether 15 consumers entered into contracts." (See Motion to Strike at 12.) Again, based on 16 the parties' own contentions, it is clear that the determination before this Court is 17 premature at the pleading stage.

18 The FTC Act may be violated if a defendant "induces the first contact 19 through deception, even if the buyer later becomes fully informed before entering 20 the contract." (See Resort Rental Car Sys., Inc., 518 F.2d 962, 964 (9th Cir.
21 1975)). Since the determination of whether a waiver is present hinges on a finding 22 of deception, this question of fact requires this Court to deny the FTC's Motion to 23 Strike Defendants' affirmative defense of waiver.

8. This Court Grants the FTC's Motion to Strike Defendants' Eighth Affirmative Defense That an Adequate Remedy at Law for Consumer Relief Exists

Defendants' eighth affirmative defense is that injunctive relief is not appropriate in this case because there is an adequate remedy at law." (See Opposition at 23.) Defendants argue once more that "consumer relief claims must be pursued under Section 19," and the FTC should not "be encouraged to circumvent the conditions Congress placed upon suits seeking consumer relief in Section 19 of the FTC Act." (See Opposition at 23.)<sup>9</sup> In response, the FTC cites Hang-Ups, where the court found that the "existence of legal remedies for individual consumers under state law does not bar the FTC from seeking equitable relief under the FTC Act; to find otherwise would nullify much of the FTC Act."
(See Hang-Ups, 1995 WL 914179 at *4.)

This Court agrees with the rationale in Hang-Ups, and therefore finds that Defendants' affirmative defense of "adequate remedy at law" must be stricken as insufficient.

9. Defendants' Ability to Assert Additional Affirmative Defenses is Governed by FED.R.CIV.P. 15

The FTC seeks to prevent Defendants from asserting additional defenses in violation of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b). (See Motion to Strike at 17.) Specifically, it takes issue with Defendants' statement in their Answer that they "reserve the right to assert additional affirmative defenses that

1 become apparent during discovery." (See Answer at 14 (emphasis added)). This 2 Court agrees with the FTC that Defendants' right, if any, to assert additional 3 affirmative defenses is governed by Fed. R. Civ. P. 15 and an appropriate request 4 to seek leave to amend the Answer to do so.

5 10. To the Extent that the Relief Sought by the FTC is Limited to a 6 Permanent Injunction and Other Ancillary Relief Under Section 7 13(b), Defendants' Request for a Jury Trial is Denied

8 Defendants argue that they are entitled to a trial by jury because the 9 relief sought by the FTC is "so significant that it cannot fairly be said [to be] a 10 request for prospective injunctive relief." (See Opposition at 25.) In response, the 11 FTC contends that Defendants have no right to a jury trial under Section 13(b) 12 because the relief sought is limited to "a permanent injunction and other equitable 13 ancillary relief derived from the Court's authority to issue such a permanent 14 injunction, pursuant to Section 13(b) of the FTC Act." (See Motion to Strike at 18 15 (citing FTC v. H.N. Singer, Inc., 1982 WL 1907 **38-39 (N.D. Cal. 1982); Hang-16 Ups, 1995 WL 914179 at *3).

17 This Court agrees with the FTC that the cases cited by it make clear 18 that there is no right to a trial by jury in an action under Section 13(b) of the FTC
 19 Act, where the monetary relief the FTC seeks is not punitive, but rather is ancillary 20 to the requested injunctive relief.<sup>10</sup> To the extent that Defendants believe such 21 monetary relief may become unlimited or punitive in nature, the FTC is bound by 22 its representations that it "would limit its request for monetary relief to the amount 23 paid by consumers, less any refunds," and more importantly, it is bound by the 24 equitable nature of the relief sought.

25
 26 <sup>10</sup> This Court also notes that Defendants have cited no case law in support 27 of their argument to the contrary.

1     III. Conclusion

2                 Based on the foregoing, this Court Denies the FTC's Motion to Strike
3     Defendants' First, Second, Fifth and Seventh affirmative defenses. This Court     SCANNED 4     Grants the FTC's Motion to Strike as to Defendants' Third, Fourth, Sixth, and 5     Eighth affirmative defenses. This Court finds that Defendants' ability to assert 6     additional affirmative defenses is governed by FED.R.CIV.P. 15. This Court 7     further finds that, to the extent that the relief sought by the FTC is limited to a 8     permanent injunction and other ancillary relief under Section 13(b), Defendants' 9     request for a jury trial is denied.
